GRADUATION ETIQUETTE TIPS

Graduation Announcements

- Send announcements to family, friends or associates. Announcing your graduation is not only good etiquette, it is also a useful networking tool.
- Send your graduation announcements before or after the actual commencement ceremony.
- The announcement is not meant to replace an invitation, it is meant to spread the good news of your accomplishment.

Graduation Open House/Party

- Invitations for your open house or party can be inserted in your announcements or mailed separately. Jostens Photo Cards are a great way to invite friends and family!
- Send your invitations—at least 14 days prior to the event.
- Select a few things that really represent the graduate and their accomplishments throughout the years, like awards, trophies and photos. Arrange them in one big display or spread them throughout your home.
- A short note of thanks, written by hand, must go to everyone who gives or sends a gift.
